A WORD FROM FATHER KEVIN

The prophet Zefanyah takes us into the Old Testament; let's list the virtues he desires of his fellow countrymen: humility before God and before His Law, integrity, attachment to the Holy Name, honesty, peace. We see honesty, gentleness and peace in the Beatitudes of the gospel reading, integrity and honesty are desired by Christ, Who repeatedly condemns their opposite: hypocrisy. That we live these virtues out because of an attachment for God - for theological reasons - means that (in the words of the prophet) we seek refuge in the name of the Lord. All of this implies that, in our spiritual lives, we become like little children, humble before our common Father, desirous to do His will, to become like Him. This is S. Paul's theme in our second reading this weekend. It is rather interesting that the proud ones of this world, especially the graduates of the universities, often look down on faithful Christians and on the inheritance of the Church... and then S. Paul here says, those whom the world thinks common and contemptible are the ones God has chosen. It is not that we are necessarily common and contemptible, but that we make ourselves so in humility, making our treasures in heaven rather than here below. And God our Lord then picks us up, glorifies us, becomes our everything.
